SOUTH DAKOTA PARENT CONNECTION
2023

"I just want to thank you again for taking the time to speak with me. I can't begin to tell you how much I appreciate the guidance; we've been so in the dark. You've revived my confidence." - Parent

"Thank you so much for the direction and compassion. I feel very empowered to take on this mountain and chip away to find the best ways to help my son. I sincerely appreciate the guidance. I'll stay in touch." - Parent

What We Do

At South Dakota ParentConnection, helping families and professionals has been at the heart of our work since 1985. We serve families with children with all disabilities and special needs. Our caring and knowledgeable staff are parents and family members of children with disabilities who can relate to the challenges you face.

These experienced staff listen to your concerns, provide information that will help you better understand your role, and help develop a comprehensive plan for addressing your unique needs. We help improve your level of understanding so that moving forward you can be more empowered to advocate for your child.

Our website provides access to our publications, resources, and events happening in your community. Discover helpful videos that provide educational instruction and guidance on important parenting topics.

Based on the concerns we hear from families, we have created and introduced several new materials this year. Find these and many other resources on our website at www.sdparent.org.

From Dr. Carla Miller, Executive Director

We have heard from many families about the concern and confusion over what happens when their child leaves school-based services after the age of 18. This has included several questions about guardianship and alternatives to full guardianship. South Dakota ParentConnection partnered with Disability Rights South Dakota to create a very useful and timely guide for parents and professionals to use in understanding this complex topic. The new guide was highlighted at several conferences this spring and summer such as Lighting the Way, the Division of Developmental Disabilities Conference, and the Vocational Rehabilitation Conference.

To get a copy, contact South Dakota ParentConnection at sdpc@sdparent.org or download a copy of the guide by visiting our website at the link below.

Because of the calls we have been receiving related to transition, we have also started offering a parent training series called Transition To Success led by Betsy Drew, one of our Outreach Specialists. Partnering with local school districts, parents and young adults learn important information on how to plan for their future, including resources available in the community to support this phase in life.

Teaching professionals can also learn ways of engaging parents and students in dialogue and how to best use planning for the future.

To learn more about Transition To Success call (800) 640-4553.

"We received so much valuable information that will be useful for our son and us to use of the next several years. The information made us think of new ideas for the future."

- Parent

South Dakota ParentConnection is here to support the whole family including the littlest among us and siblings of someone with a disability. We are once again hosting Sibshops.

Sibshops is a nationally known program that provides young brothers and sisters of kids with special developmental concerns with peer support and information in a lively, recreational setting.

This past year Outreach Specialist, Kris Sellers held 3 Sibshops. The siblings who attended had fun together meeting other siblings with like experiences, laughing, talking, and learning more about their sibling's disability.

"I like getting to meet other kids who have a sibling with a disability and learning about other disabilities." - Sibling

On staff at South Dakota ParentConnection, Lisa Sanderson, is the acting Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's Act Early Ambassador for South Dakota. The goal of this initiative is to help families know early development milestones so, that if there are concerns, they can act early to get concerns addressed.

The program has grown to include over 110 state-wide partners and has distributed over 43,000 materials related to understanding early developmental milestones. For more information about the Act Early Initiative or how to access materials reach out to Lisa Sanderson at lsanderson@sdparent.org.

"Thank you for the information and thank you for listening last week. With a recent diagnosis, starting therapies, being on wait lists, etc. this has been a difficult process for our family all together. Things I thought could help this process and/or our family have been very disappointing and honestly have put nothing but added stress on us, and more specifically me. It's hard being the mama bear sometimes!" - Parent
